Introduction

Iris Analysis

Iris Analysis, also known as Iridology; is the scientific study of the patterns on the Iris, the colored part of your eyes. The iris is one of the most intricate and fascinating tissue structures in the human body. Iris Analysis or Iridology can provide accurate information about a person's physical health, mental abilities as well as inherent qualities of a person.

Father of Iris Analysis

Dr Ignatz von Peczely, a Hungarian Doctor (January 26, 1826 – July 14, 1911) is titled as the Father of Iris Analysis. While still a child he accidentally broke the leg of an owl. He noticed a black mark appearing in the owl's eye, which over time changed in form and shading. Ignatz von Peczely qualified in medicine at the Vienna Medical College in 1867. He had ample opportunity to study the iris of patients before and after surgery, systematically recording, correlating and publishing his research in the book 'Discoveries in the Realms of Nature and Art of Healing'. His 'Iris Chart' was established in 1880. In 1870, he published his papers describing his experiences, 'Quinine and Iodine change the Color of the Iris', and in 1893 published 'Om Oegen diagnosen', which included his 'Iris Chart'.

Learning Style – Visual

Visual Learners : Visual Learners learn by seeing. Their sight sensory is the strongest. They prefer to use graphs, diagrams, charts, doodling, maps, images & colors They can easily place and recall images. Since their sight is their greatest strength, they can easily notice even minor changes in their surroundings.

Wow....This is very close to your best area...can be considered to work upon

Study Tips for Visual Learner

- * As a teacher or parent; while teaching; select texts that have more images, diagrams, pie charts & flow charts.
- * As a student use color coding related to topics and highlight important keywords can help you recall information faster.
- * While studying science; draw images related to the topic, or dig into science based on more diagrams than text.
- * While studying math's create a separate chart just for the formulas and stick it on the wall of your room.
